ELDERHELP EXPANDS OUTREACH AND SUPPORT TO SENIORS IN NEED

San Diego, CA — During the COVID-19 crisis, ElderHelp is committed to sustaining the health and well-being of San Diego County seniors, especially those who are isolated or home bound with limited access to food, medical services, and family support. During this incredibly challenging time, ElderHelp staff and vetted volunteers have mobilized to provide seniors with the support they need to shelter in place.

Currently providing a lifeline for more than 800 seniors, plus hundreds of callers from the community at large, we've experienced a 140% increase in client interactions, and a 123% increase in seniors served. In response to stay-at-home mandates and the high demand, we have completely revamped our service delivery model to not only keep seniors safe, but our staff and older volunteers as well. The greatest demand right now is help with urgent food and supplies, easing financial concerns, and providing supportive housing resources. Here is an update:

Combatting Food Insecurity: Vetted volunteers and staff are delivering fresh groceries and supplies to doorsteps to maintain health and nutrition. We are collecting essential items - either from food distribution sites, grocery stores, or local restaurants - and then delivering to seniors. We're also providing assistance with no-contact grocery shopping and delivery without entering the home, as well as online shopping. Working closely with the Jacobs & Cushman Food Bank, and other local agencies, we have turned our office into a food pantry to have additional resources for the most vulnerable.

volunteers continue to receive encouraging phone calls and conversations, allaying fears and anxiety and alerting staff of potential serious medical concerns. We have asked that our over-65 years of age volunteers remain home, but they continue to stay engaged by with telephonic friendly visits.

Addressing isolation: Friendly visits—We have tripled our check-in calls and friendly visiting outreach. Seniors who are matched with Protecting Seniors: Unfortunately fraudulent activity and scams have escalated. ElderHelp remains vigilant about vetting every volunteer, exercising health and safety protocols, and educating seniors about how they can safely access resources and support.

Mobilizing the Community-- To meet increased demand, we've scheduled weekly online Volunteer Orientations each Wednesday. Community members can register at www.bit.ly/Volunteer4EH or email volunteers@elderhelpofsandiego.org for more information.
